The German system, of deposit on glass bottles and their crates with return to the retailer, works well. In addition there is similar system for plastic bottles. It's easy and well received, at home you just put your empty plastic bottles into your shopping bag, instead of in the bin. When you go to the shops you place the bottles into a machine, and it prints a voucher which you can use at the checkout. There are no extra trips, like with glass recycling banks, as everything happens in the shop, where you are going anyways.
